

The diagram illustrates a DNA double helix with a mutation. The top strand is red and contains the sequence T C A G T. The bottom strand is blue and contains the sequence C G. The A and G base pairs are highlighted in green and orange, respectively, indicating a mismatch. The mutation is located at the third position of the top strand, where an A is present instead of the expected C.

T C A G T
C G